Transitioning Into Care (TIC) and support - for residents and families

We understand the transition from independent living to residential care is a very significant, life-changing event for residents and for their families. It is often sudden and unplanned and it can be traumatic, emotional and confronting.

To support new residents and families, we provide a seven-week settling in program that helps them to establish friendships, become acquainted with their new surroundings and adapt to communal living and changes to everyday routines.

In this initial period new residents care and lifestyle needs are assessed and a care plan is developed that is goal and outcome-oriented. This is developed in conjunction with each family. We also recognise and acknowledge the many changes families and carers experience and our Transition Into Care program also offers a number of 'touch base calls' to families that are focused on ensuring there is clear communication with SummitCare. New families are also invited to attend an orientation meeting within the first month.

We have found family members can take time to adapt to visiting their loved ones in a communal setting and changes to routine. Our aim is to ensure family members will know who to contact in different situations, fully understand the residential aged care environment, processes and procedures such as visiting, meal times and laundry, and feel in control and heard.

Behavioural support program

With more than 50 years' experience in caring for people living with varying forms of memory loss, SummitCare's dedicated team and support programs help residents to remain as active as possible and ensure they continue to enjoy a happy, fulfilled life.

Many people worry that moving into a care home will mean losing their independence or giving up the things they love doing. At SummitCare we learn about what really matters to you such as the activities you enjoy doing, what you like to eat, where you have lived, what jobs you have done and your favourite places. We immerse ourselves in your world so that we see you, the person, and find as many ways as possible for you to feel valued and happy.

We Explore

- Life histories
- Significant life events
- School days and work life
- Marriage
- Children and grandchildren
- Key people: knowing the important people that are, or have been, in you or your loved one's life gives us important cues for communication.

We use photos and possessions from life experiences that help to evoke happy memories. This information helps to inform and shape the relationships we develop with residents and families. By working together with the whole family we can develop care plans that support residents to live happily and make every day as good as it can be.

Finding a service

We want you to easily adapt to life at SummitCare.

To make the admission process as simple as possible for you, here is a quick guide to what happens when applying for aged care:

1. You will need an ACAT (Aged Care Assessment Team) assessment done for admission to residential aged care (or to receive a government funded home care package). This will help determine the care you require, and your eligibility. It can be arranged through contacting My Aged Care at www.myagedcare.gov.au who will refer you to your local assessment team.
2. From there you will be advised on your eligibility and you will be sent your assessment. My Aged Care has a 'find a service' online directory but they will also help you in your search to match a service to your requirements. We recommend you also do your own research to ensure you find an aged care home that best suits you.
3. You will have to consider the financial implications of moving into aged care and what you need to pay - at this point we suggest you speak with an independent financial specialist, who specialises in aged care, who can advise you.
4. You will need to apply to the aged care homes that you wish to live in, placing your name on their waiting lists.
5. Once a place is available, you will complete the necessary paperwork, and undergo orientation at your chosen centre so you can move in.

We look forward to you selecting SummitCare as your new home, and we are here to help with any questions you may have about the admission process.

Finance

Dealing with the financial aspects of moving into aged care, or choosing in-home care, can be confronting and complex, particularly at this very emotional point in life. You may be asked to pay towards your care, accommodation and daily living costs. How much you pay depends on your financial situation. There are strong protections in place to make sure that care is affordable for everyone. The Australian Government sets the maximum fees for care and daily living expenses, and there are also rules about how much you can be asked to pay or contribute to your accommodation.

You may be asked to pay one or more of the following:

A basic daily care fee. This covers the cost of your daily care needs (dispensing medication, showering, cleaning etc). For some people this is the only fee they are required to pay.

A means-tested care fee. This is an additional contribution towards the cost of care that some people may be required to pay. The Department of Human Services (Centrelink) or Department of Veterans' Affairs (DVA) will work out if you are required to pay this fee based on an assessment of your income and assets, and will advise you of the amount.

An accommodation payment. This is for your accommodation in your new home and for things such as meals, electricity and laundry. Some people will have their accommodation costs met in full or part by the Australian Government, while others will need to pay the accommodation price agreed with the aged care home. Centrelink will advise you which applies to you based on an assessment of your income and assets.

Fees for Extra Services and Additional Services. Additional fees may apply if you choose a higher standard of accommodation or additional services. These vary from home to home. Your aged care provider can provide you with details of these services and the fees that apply.

Our aim is to make your life as easy and simple as possible.

We have plenty of simple and easy-to-follow information available for you. We are always happy to explain about the costs associated with the care we provide. Information is also detailed on our website www.summitcare.com.au.

The Australian Government's My Aged Care Service is very helpful in outlining what aged care services are available, how to apply for aged care and the fees associated with aged care. The contact centre number is 1800 200 422 and the website is www.myagedcare.gov.au.

SummitCare can also put you in touch with several independent financial advisors who specialise in helping you make the best financial decisions around care requirements as you age.
